

Listen up. We've given you a file that looks like a blank page. A blank page! You're a spy, not a paper factory worker. The clue isn't in what you see; it's in what you don't. The most valuable secrets are often hidden in the most mundane places.

Your mission is to find the invisible text. Your computer has a magic trick for this. Don't just stare at the file. Select all the content. Go on. You've got this.

The truth is there. You just have to make it visible.